Webinar Outline

Knowing what is 'normal' during a health care and community living work stoppage will help keep your reaction in perspective and emotions under control. This webinar will help you develop and build a plan, achieving the ultimate goal of keeping your employees and the people you care for safe while allowing you to continue your operations and provide the care your clients require. You will be provided with guidelines to help you manage the expectations of all affected by a labour dispute. During this presentation, we will look at several areas and strategies that will allow you to meet these goals. Program objectives will include the following:

Topics Discussed:

- Review the business impact of a potential labour dispute
- Outline union pressure tactics
- Review planning strategies and critical time lines.
- Review what you should be prepared for prior to and during a work stoppage
 - At home
 - In the community
 - In the media – traditional and social
 - On the picket line
- Manage expectations via real life examples
- Suggested courses of action
